Think you can spot me?

Jimmie's SABRE Adventure

Hey there, SABRE readers! It's your favorite jackalope, Jimmie, and I'm up to my usual mischief—hiding somewhere in this issue!

Think you've got the eyes to spot me? If you find where I'm hiding, email my location to 412fss.fsk@gmail.com for a chance to win a $25 FSS gift card! One lucky winner will be randomly selected at the end of this SABRE issue's run.

So grab your detective gear, flip through those pages, and let the great Jimmie hunt begin. Good luck!

February is Teen Dating Violence

Awareness Month

Help Teens Stay Safe in Dating

Teens are learning about dating and healthy relationships, but they don't always recognize teasing or controlling behavior as red flags. By tolerating inappropriate actions, they risk more severe abuse — whether physical, emotional or sexual. One in twelve U.S. high school students report being physically abused by a partner within the past year, which can lead to struggles in school, substance abuse and future relationship issues. Parents play a vital role in helping teens stay safe and aware.

How You Can Help

- Model healthy relationships to show how honest communication builds trust.
- Talk with teens about the importance of respect—both giving and receiving.
- Teach responsible use of social media.
- Connect teens with support through the Family Advocacy Program.
