Jimmie's Lost & Found

Hello, Readers!
Oh no! I was getting ready for the holidays and misplaced one of my presents. I know it's hiding somewhere in this issue, but I just can't remember where. If you find it, email where you spotted it to 412fss.fsk@gmail.com for a chance to win a $25 FSS Gift Card. One winner will be randomly selected at the end of this issue's run.

Thanks for helping me out!
Jimmie the Jackalope

Have you seen this present? I'm hoping you can help me find it!

Relief from AFib with WATCHMAN™

The WATCHMAN FLX™ Left Atrial Appendage Closure Device is designed for people with AFib not caused by a heart valve problem who need an alternative to blood thinners. AFib is an irregular rhythm in the upper chambers of the heart.

The WATCHMAN is inserted into the heart through a one-time, minimally invasive procedure. This device is permanent and cannot be seen outside the body.

The implant fits right into the left atrial appendage to help prevent blood clots from escaping. WATCHMAN is roughly the size of a quarter and made from light, compact materials.

The procedure may allow you to stop taking blood thinners after roughly 45 days.

Together We Strengthen Our Community

Healthy, respectful relationships strengthen our entire force. We all have a role to play in keeping our military community safe. This October, the Department of the Air Force recognizes Domestic Violence Awareness & Prevention Month and encourages connection, support, and early help-seeking.

Show your support: Wear purple on October 15 for the Domestic Violence Awareness & Prevention Day of Action.

Tips for Navigating Holiday Stress

1. Check In With Yourself

It's okay to feel unhappy during the holidays. Recognize your feelings and give yourself space to address them.

2. Make a Stress Plan

Have a plan for difficult moments. Call someone you trust, take a walk, or do something that brings you joy.

3. Practice Self-Care

Make time to recharge through activities like reading, exercise, nature, deep breathing, or mindfulness. Prioritize healthy meals and sleep, too.

4. Stay Connected

If you're away from loved ones, connect with clubs, support groups, community centers, or other supportive communities. Schedule regular calls with family and friends.

5. Support Others

The holidays can be difficult for those experiencing grief, loss, or loneliness. Check in on someone who may be struggling. A little connection can make a big difference and boost your own well-being, too.

6. Recognize Seasonal Mood Changes

Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD) can cause depression symptoms as the days get shorter. Talk to your health care provider if you notice symptoms. Treatment is available.

7. Plan Ahead for Substance Use Triggers

If you're in recovery, the holidays can bring situations that increase the risk of substance use. Have a plan for social events or difficult moments, and check in on loved ones who may be struggling.

8. Know When to Seek Help

If mental health challenges become overwhelming, reach out for help. Treatment is available, and you don't have to manage it alone.

Helping Agencies Resources

Looking for support, services, or community resources? Edwards AFB Helping Agencies are available to connect individuals and families with support, assistance, resources and guidance. Contact the Helping Agencies Phone Tree at (661) 277-6711 or find information on the Helping Agencies section of the EdwardsAFB website using the QR code.

DEPARTMENT OF THE AIR FORCE FAMILY ADVOCACY PROGRAM

Family Advocacy Program offers parent support, counseling, and resources for healthy relationships. Help is available for those affected by domestic abuse. Call (661) 277-5292.
